Assurant Names John Pawloski as Chief Compliance Officer

NEW YORK, July 24, 2018 – Assurant, Inc. (NYSE: AIZ), a global provider of risk management solutions, today announced the appointment of John Pawloski to senior vice president, chief compliance officer. Reporting to Carey Roberts, Assurant’s chief legal officer, Pawloski will be based in Assurant’s Atlanta office and succeeds Doris Vigo, who will remain with Assurant until her retirement at the end of 2019.

As chief compliance officer, Pawloski will lead Assurant’s global compliance team and have responsibility for the company’s global corporate and regulatory compliance programs.

“John brings a wealth of experience to Assurant, as well as a sophisticated understanding of our businesses and a passion for compliance and ethics,” said Roberts. “Importantly, John is known for collaborating closely with business leaders to embed compliance into business operations in support of sustainable business growth.”

Prior to joining Assurant, Pawloski served as chief compliance officer for USAA’s Enterprise Staff Agencies group. In that role, he led a team of professionals who managed the compliance risks facing their insurance, banking and investment operations.

“I am excited to join Assurant and work with a team that shares a vision for the highest level of business ethics and corporate responsibility,” said Pawloski. “I look forward to playing a role in supporting the transformation and growth that Assurant continues to experience and being a part of this organization’s long-term success.”

Prior to his career at USAA, Pawloski was general counsel at Southwest Business Corporation (SWBC), a diversified financial services company that provides lender-placed products for auto and home lending.

Pawloski earned his Masters of Business Administration and Juris Doctor degree from St. Mary’s University. He also teaches a compliance, ethics and risk management course at St. Mary’s Law School.
